Some distance up Otago Gorge, near Opotiki, New Zealand, on a portion of the estate of Thomas Black, an enormous puketea tree, probably many hundred years old, has been blown down, disclosing the astounding fact that the hollow interior, extending from the roots to the first fork, about forty-five feet, had been filled with human bodies. Since it fell these had burst out at the butt of the tree in the form of a confused heap of skeletons. A more extraordinary sight than this of a confused heap of skeletons. A more extraordinary sight than this monarch of the forest lying prone and discharging a perfect hecatomb of human skeletons can scarcely be conceived. Some are nearly perfect, while others are mixed up in a chaotic tmass of heads, hands, feet and arms, indiscriminately. All the Maoris here seem to have been quite unaware of this natural charnel house, and declare that it must have happened long before their or their fathers' time. In deed, the appearance of the tree fully deed, the appearance of the tree fully justified the supposition that it must have been some hundreds of years since this novel family vault was filled with its ghastly occupants.

A writer in the California Apiculturist notes how skunks may be disposed of: "Take an old barrel and place it on its side on a triangular stick of wood about seven inches high, fastening the bait on the bottom of the barrel. When the skunk goes for his bait, as soon as he passes the center the barrel turns up with the skunk without making any scent. When thus trapped, take it by the tail and do with as desired. Care must be taken not to place the barrel too high, as it might throw over and not remain as it might throw over and not remain upright. The more skunks you catch in the same barrel the better it becomes as a trap." We would also remark that the more of these odorous creatures one takes by the tail the better the beautiful the same but he was the same taken by the tail the better the same taken taken the same taken taken

Why, then, should an actor or singer be compelled to give double measure of whatever he does well? An intelligent audience will applaud whatever is particularly well done, but the applause does not always mean that repetition is demanded. At some performances, however, and notably at concerts, there appears a class of people who, determined to get all they can for their money, encore everybody and everything, and turn into exacting trickery a custom that once signified honorable regard for deserving artists. FREE POSTAL DELIVERY.

As our city has arrived at a point in the scale of importance that suggests she should have all the facilities essen tial to the convenient discharge of business, we are constrained to ask in be half of our fellow citizens for the privileges accorded other metropolitar cities in the way of a Free Postal Delivery. We are informed by Post master Dunkelberger that the receipts of the Los Angeles office are now about thirty thousand dollars per annum, and constantly increasing. We are not advised of the point necessary to be attained to entitle a city to the free delivery system, but are advised that some offices are accorded where the annual receipts do not exceed ten thousand. Presuming this to be correct, we infer that we are big enough to enjoy the blessing and have a surplus over, so that to obtain it we have but to ask for it in a becoming and proper manner to get it. Will Colonel Dunkelberger be kind enough to inform us what steps it is necessary to take to obtain the system? If it is by petition we will guarantee to get the signatures of every adult inhabitant inside of a week. If agitating the matter will win it, let us agi-

RICKING AGAINST THE PRICES.

The Argonaut and the Spirit of th imes, two weekly papers in San Fran-isco, are reported to be in rebellion gainst the Administration and the party supporting it because of the veto of the Chinese bill. The papers are edited by aspiring politici have the most exalted ideas of their recious selves. One aspires to the rship and the other to be eneral dictator, who expects to wir lace and power by persistent bellowsms. There is in him something of the spirit of the Ishmaelite, whos nd was raised against eyerybody and who in the end found he had pro voked everybody else to raise their ands against him. The Argonau should not forget that this is a country of free speech and free thought, and that there are thousands of Republicans, who by their patriotism, devotion to party, age and intelligence, are as much entitled to a voice and influence in deciding the policy of the nation, a is the gentleman whose opinions find utterance through the columns of that paper. It is not just to ignore the and laborer of the great Republican party, and assume that no one but the men who sit at a desk editorial shall have a hearing in shaping party policy Now, it is just as well that these self onstituted dictators should cease their babblings and a deference be paid to the voice of the majority of the party. And there is great injustice in any re flections upon the Administration for its present status upon the Chinese bill. The President had a clear legal right to his veto, and was supported a strong sentiment averse to the bill, because of the long period profair minded Republicon will only regret the President did not see the evil the bill sought to remove with the all right by a pardon from Governo eyes of a Californian. The better ourse to adopt is that taken by Sens temper, spat on their hands and took old of the rope for another pull all ogether, and a pull that is winning us a bill satisfactory in all respects, and commend the example of these men to the Argonaut and Spirit of the Times. MORE ANCIENT HISTORY.

While the Democratic party have een posturizing and boasting of their ecord on the Chinese question it might be well to call attention to the following, which we find in the San Jose Mercury:

Mercury:

The Senate of the Fourth Session of the California Legislature was politically divided into thirty-three Democrate and eight Whigs—the Republican party had not been organized. Mr. Keene was President pro tempore, and therefore the technical "leader" of the majority. On the 27th of January, 1853, [as may be seen by reference to the Senate Journal of that Session, lange 80.] Keene introduced a resothe Senate Journal of that Session, page 80, Keene introduced a resolution memorializing the President of the United States to appoint some suitable person from this State for the office of Commissioner to China. the omce of Commissioner to China. Keene's resolution was rejected. On the following day, January 28, Senator Hagar, the soundness of whose Democrecy no Democrat will question, moved a reconsideration of the vote whereby said resolution was defeated,

Three Little Girls are Made Seriously Ill From Using It.

During the recent visit of Dr. J. S. ance upon the session of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar there, his little girl, aged about thirteen years, who accompanied him, came near losing her life from being poisoned. One her life from being poisoned. One afternoon in company with two little daughters of Judge J. D. Hines, of San Buenaventura, she went out on a stroll through the different candy "palaces" of San Francisco. Returning about five o'clock all three were taken sick. Physicians were called and antidotes administered and it was not until after several hours of hard work and persistent endeavor that the children were pronounced out of danger. The poison was probably conveyed to them in the coloring of the candies of which they had partaken.

WILLOX, April 19.—Loco's band of Warm Spring Indians left San Carlos Reservation early this morning. A. D. Sterling, Chief of Scouts, who had gone out to ascertain if any renegades were lurking near the Warm Spring Indian camp, was killed; also one of his Indian police. Reports at this hour are meagre, but it is thought that Ju, with a number of renegades, was at the Indian camp last night and induced the Warm Spring Indians to go on the warpath. Reports of the massacre of eight men on Eagle Creek lack confirmation. Lieutenant Schofield, with sixty men from Camp Thomas, crossed the river at the sub-agency, on crossed the river at the sub-agency, on the trail of the fugitives. AN ALLEGED THEFT.

Man Loses a Friend and Eighty

Yesterday morning a man with a woe egone countenance walked into the police station and told a pitiful story about his having come into the city on Tuesday with a friend; that the two put up at the Grange House, on Main street; that in the morning his friend and eighty dollars in coin, all the money he had in the world, were gone. He and eighty dollars in coin, all the money he had in the world, were gone. He was told to watch the morning train departing at the new depot, while a policeman was stationed at the old depot to keep a strict watch. Nothing was seen of the missing friend and money, and as the man has not turned up since, the conclusion is that he found his man and money and put off with them.

I think my father will be out not hurting him, only scattering starched clothes for a distance of half a mile. The wagon was broken into smithereens.

Another Chinaman, a vegetable peddler, allowed his horse to run away while serving customers on the hill, and the horse not relishing a tumble over the hill, ran plump into a private yard, tearing away the hitching post and gate. The debris stopped his progress.

Accidentally Hung.

Mr. J. A. Valder met with the loss o of a fine thoroughbred mare yesterday morning by a peculiar accident. Hav ing staked the animal out the night be fore, the picket-rope in some way be-came entangled with one of its hind legs, probably through some effort to remove a "flea from its ear," and in its struggles to release itself the rope was tightened at the throat and the result was a first-class hanging. Mr. Valder valued the animal very highly, it having a three-minute record.

Mr. Marasovich is now in this city looking after his mines in the Cahuenga, seven miles west of Los Angeles. Mr. Marasovich has discovered a valuable mineral spring in the Dalmatia mining district. He kept a confectionery store on Main street, opposite the Court House, twenty years ago, and afterwards a grocery store on Aliso street, near the flour mill. The mining fever at last found another victim, and like all prospectors, he is happy in anticipated riches in the "sweet-by-and-bye." No reference is had at all to the future world.

Fellows went as far as Watsonville in company with the then editor of the Daily Echo. and then went on, as he said, to see friends at Gonzales, Monterey county, promising to return to Santa Cruz in about ten days. He never came back, and nothing more was heard of or from him until the San Jose dailies reported Fellows to be fleeing from the officers of the law, he being charged with robbing the Los Alamitos stage and being connected with several other robberies.

The whereabout of Fellows after that date are unknown positively even

The whereabouts of Fellows after that date are unknown positively even to Detective Hume.

During the months of November and December, 1881, a series of stage robberies were perpetrated almost simultaneously over the counties of Monterey, San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara. The Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express box seemed to be the object of the robbery every time. From the character of these attacks, while they could have been by a large organized gang of robbers, it seems impossible for them to have come from one man or a few men, as they frequently occurred at the same time.

After his arrest at Mayfield he was taken to San Jose. Here Fellows made his escape, but was recaptured and taken to Santa Barbara. As Sheriff Williams of Santa Clara county, expressed it on a recent visit to this city, "the boys [meaning the detectives] do not have much to convict Fellows on, but they are going to do it on general principles, and there isn't much hope for him."

That risk came up in the Superior Court principles, and there isn't much nope for him."

The trial came up in the Superior Court of Santa Barbara last month, and while the prosecution was present in all its strength there was no defense whatever. Fellows was disappointed at the absence of his counsel, and was not allowed to finish a speech containing only fortynine pages of legal cap, which he had written in his own behalf, but was choked off.

Under date of the 6th instant Fellows writes as follows: "I have engaged new attorneys, who will appeal my case to the Supreme Court. Mr. Oglesby, of Santa Barbara, and Judge Graves, of Santa Barbara, and Judge Graves, of Santa Barbara, and Judge Graves, of Santa

Getting Up in the World
